

Cameron Buck, MD, FACEP

Currently, I serve as the ED medical director at University of Washington Valley Medical Center (UW VMC) in Renton, Washington. UW VMC is a community hospital and is a site for the community ED rotation for the UW EM residency. I completed a residency in emergency medicine at the University of Cincinnati and moved to the Seattle area in 1999. I am involved in medical staff activities with the bylaws committee and chairperson of Medical Quality Improvement committee. I participate in the hospitals cardiac, stroke, trauma, antibiotic stewardship and opioid stewardship committees. Previously, I served as the physician champion for Epic implementation and on VMCs ED design committee. Sepsis care and alignment with best practices is important to me and I champion sepsis related quality initiatives as part of the sepsis performance improvement committee.

Additionally, I support EMS functions as an associate medical director for King County Medic One providing medical advisory and QA for EMS, as medical director for Puget Sound Fire's CARES program (mobile integrated healthcare) and as a member of the Washington state EMS and Trauma Steering Committee. Activities outside of the hospital include being an avid sports fan and playing tennis competitively. I am involved in a non-profit organization, Mercy Walk which supports health and community related missions in Kenya and Romania.
